Cardinal Maida visits Piast Institute

On Monday, August 25th, Adam Cardinal Maida visited the offices of the Piast Institute at 3841 Talbot Street in Detroit to bless the newly established Institute. The Institute is a national research center and think tank on Polish and Polish-American affairs. The Piast Institute was created to sponsor research and disseminate information about Poland and Polonia through publications, lectures, conferences, exhibits and popular programs using both Polonia and mainstream media. It is establishing a network of fellows and corresponding scholars at academic centers throughout the United States and Poland to assist in its work and to keep it abreast of current issues of importance.

In his remarks, Cardinal Maida lauded the Institute for its goals to unify and serve the Polish community and Poland, to advocate their interests through research and education, to expand knowledge of Poland as she assumes a new role in the world and to preserve the richness of Polish history and culture for Polish-Americans and their fellow Americans. He noted Institute founder Dr. Thaddeus Radzilowski, Ms. Kathryn Hartman, Ms. Virginia Skrzyniarz and Cardinal Maida on the front porch of Piast Institute.

America which the Piast Institute has also chosen as a goal should be the natural outgrowth of such work if it is done in a spirit of charity and brotherhood which faith demands of all of us.

Cardinal Maida congratulated the founders and supporters of the Piast Institute on their vision and wished them well in the accomplishment of their goals to bring about enlightenment and understanding through research and service. He held up to them the model of the recently canonized St. Jadwiga, Queen of Poland, as someone to be emulated in her life and work by those who seek to promote learning, service to the common good and unity of all peoples in harmony. The institute has chosen her as its patron. The niece of the last Piast Dynasty King of Poland, Jadwiga is venerated for her intelligence and good works and her patronage of teaming as the re-founder of the University of Krakow. By her decision to marry Jagiello, Grand Duke of Lithuania, she helped to unite the peoples of East Central Europe into a prosperous and generous multinational commonwealth.

The Institute was founded by Dr. Thaddeus Radzilowski, former President of Saint Mary's College and a well-known scholar who has published extensively on Polonia, Poland and Eastern Europe. He has also served at the National Endowment for the Humanities and as a consultant to the U.S. Civil Rights Commission and the U.S. Bureau of the Census on matters of ethnicity and the economic status of peoples of East Central European ancestry. The cofounder, Ms. Virginia Skrzyniarz, has many years of experience in the direction of nonprofit organizations with special emphasis on community health and housing issues. She was SE Michigan Director of Hope Network and Vice President for Administration at Saint Mary's College. She has been involved in Polish cultural and community organizations since childhood. The Institute's Business Administrator is Ms. Kathryn Hartman. ♦
